Suffered Twenty-One Years-- Finally Found Relief

Having suffered for 21 years with a pain in my side, I finally have found relief in Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. Injections of morphine were my only relief for short periods of time. I became so sick that I had to undergo a surgical operation in New Orleans, which benefited me for two years. When the same pain came back once more I was so sick that I gave up hope of living. A friend advised me to try your Swamp-Root and I at once commenced using it. The first bottle did me so much good that I purchased two more bottles. I am now on my second bottle and am feeling like a new woman. I passed a gravel stone as large as a big red bean and several small ones. I have not had the least feeling of pain since taking your Swamp-Root, and I feel it my duty to recommend this great medicine to all suffering humanity. Gratefully yours, MRS. JOSEPH CONSTANCE, Rapids, Pa.

Personally appeared before me, this 15th day of July, 1911, Mrs. Joseph Constance, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

WILLIAM MORROW,
Notary Public.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

THE TABLE.

Baked Sausage and Potatoes—Slice thickly as many potatoes as desired, put on to boil until about half done (seasoning, of course), then put in deep baking pan with rings of sausage on top. Bake until grease has baked out of sausage or until sausage is brown. Turn sausage to brown under side. This makes an easy meal to prepare and is nice for one who doesn't like sausage because it contains too much fat.

"Mamma's Turkey Sauce"—The day after Thanksgiving, when one is just a little surfeited with good things to eat, the cold turkey will be doubly inviting if served this way: Take six large ripe tomatoes. Plunge into boiling water to remove skins, then chop fine. Add medium sized onion, three large green peppers chopped, half cup water, salt and pepper (just a pinch of cayenne). Boil until peppers are dark green. Remove from fire and add two cups boiled rice. Serve cold sliced turkey on platter surrounded by sauce.

Favorite Rabbit Recipe—Prepare rabbit as you would for frying. Place in kettle with three or four small slices of fresh side pork, stew till tender, boil dry and brown same as for pot roast. It is not so dry and the wild taste is not so strong.

"Sudden Visitation" Pudding—Crumble about 10 ounces stale bread and mix into it six ounces sugar, a little grated nutmeg, cinnamon and citron peel, yolks of three eggs and a tea-cupful of cream or boiled rich milk; into milk put a lump of butter size of an egg. After it is well beaten together put it into a tart dish and over

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: There has been an estrangement that has come between a very dear girl friend and myself. The case is puzzling to me. I have made overtures to regain her friendship when I was not the one that was the greatest at fault, but she ignored them. In my treatment of her I have always given her my kindest respect. A misunderstanding grew out of our friendship that was very peculiar. Since then she has cherished all manner of doubts about me. She has doubted my character because I have been a man who has travelled a great deal and have had a great deal of experience for my age. She held accusations in her mind that I did not respect her relatives, while I have never given her an occasion to think so. These things hurt me deeply, as I did not think after the treatment I had given her she would harbor such imaginations.

Did you think her worthy of my further consideration? I am a man who does not give up easily, but there are times when a fellow should uphold his self-respect. Is there really anything more I should do?

PUZZLED.

No happiness can grow out of friendship with a girl who does not trust you. As long as she finds you such a suspicious character she ought to drop you, but since she doesn't I think it is your place to give her up.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Last summer I was introduced to a handsome young man of whom I have thought constantly since. He is in a good business and is trying to live a clean, enterprising life. I am crazy to get better acquainted with him, but I never go to any social functions that he attends, because he lives in another town. How can I get better acquainted so that he will not think that I am in pursuit of him? You certainly don't know how it is to feel the way I do. I can neither sleep nights nor have a minute's rest when awake, for thinking of some plan and trying to devise one in which I may win him. He certainly is ideal. I am interested in religion and so is he and I am almost certain that we could be happy if only the ice were broken.

THANK YOU.

You have said that the man is ideal, and the one you worship certainly is ideal because he is a creation of your thoughts and not a reality. Without knowing him you can be no true judge of his character. Don't let your mind dwell on this obsession, because you are depriving yourself of much happiness that is rightfully yours but that you refuse to recognize. There is no way in which you can force a better acquaintance without compromising yourself. You might become acquainted through church work.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man 23 years old and am counted good looking and my character is good. I have been keeping company with a girl five years younger than I am. We were engaged to be married and she said she loved me all along until a few Sunday nights ago, when she said she was going to quit. And she did. But she said she still wanted to be friends with me. She said that she might like to come back to me some day and that she hated to think of me marrying anyone else. Do you think she will come back? Please tell me how to win her back, as I love her very much and it breaks my heart to lose her.

LONESOME BOY.

A girl of 18 is wise not to be herself down to one boy when she knows so little of others. Be just a friend to this girl for two or three years, as she asks you to, since you care so much for her.

Hair Curling Troubles Are Over—Read This!

Girls, have you heard about the newest way to curl the hair? If you have not, by all means, cut out these simple directions and try this wonderful method tonight before you go to bed. Just procure a new tooth brush and a few ounces of plain liquid stearine from your drug store; apply enough of the liquid with the brush to moisten the hair from root to tip. Tomorrow morning you will be quite astonished when you find that your hair has dried in such lovely waves and curls they appear altogether natural. Instead of having been artificially curled.

Your hair will of course have more "body" and fluffiness than where the drying, searing waving iron is used. It will appear glossier and livelier, for stearine has proved equally desirable as a dressing for the hair. You'll find it pleasant to use, and it will leave no sticky, greasy or streaky trace.
